Rosen Technology Resources Announced as 2006 Winner at the Law Technology News Awards

NEW YORK, January 2007 – Rosen Technology Resources, Inc., a leading litigation support consulting company, has been announced as the winner of the 2006 Technology Award in the category of Litigation Support Service/Consultant by Law Technology News[®] for the second year in a row. “The growing interest evidenced in our fourth annual awards competition reflects the expanding importance of technology in the practice and business of law. Our product and service winners, chosen by experts and real-world users across the industry, have continued to raise the bar in innovation and customer satisfaction. We congratulate them on this significant achievement,” said Kevin Vermeulen, publisher of Law Technology News[®]. Winners were announced at New York LegalTech, on Monday, January 29 at the New York Hilton.

Rosen Technology Resources provides litigation support services, consulting and training on the country’s most widely utilized applications. RTR is also an exclusive resource for ALCoder, an automated coding application that can be plugged into existing OCR or Electronic data databases for one-click coding in industry leading software applications. Users can also bulk process batches of documents using industry standard formats.

About the Law Technology News Company/Product Awards

In 2006, the editors of Law Technology News[®] asked the publication's more than 40,000 subscribers to select products and vendors that represented outstanding achievement in legal technology in 14 award categories. Ballots were solicited from LTN's subscriber audience of law firm partners and managing partners, legal administrators, MIS/IT directors and specialists, corporate counsel, litigation support specialists, librarians and other legal professionals. Winners were determined based on the most-mentioned product/company in each category. Information on the awards and winners will be featured in the March issue of Law Technology News and on the magazine's Web site at www.lawtechnologynews.com.
